

12. What is a competitive GPA for transfer?

Grade point averages necessary to compete for admission to impact or selective programs vary from year to year, depending on the pool of applicants for any given academic year. Generally, a GPA of 3.0 is considered competitive, though even higher GPAs may be required to gain admission to majors and campuses for which the most students apply. An IVC transfer counselor can tell you whether that is the case for the major or campus of your choice.
